

Jason Casati

Junior Developer

Email: jason@sero.life

Visit: sero.group

Ever since Jason was a kid, he was infatuated with video games and like most children in his shoes, he wanted to create his own. He later decided against going into game development to keep his naivety when playing games because he started to see games differently, but this is what sparked his passion for programming.

Jason recently graduated from Cardiff university where he studied computer science, and this role is his first step into his field. He always wanted to work for a good cause, so he is delighted to start his journey with Sero.

Outside of work, he spends his spare time playing video games but when he doesn't have his computer on, you'll catch him wreaking havoc at airsoft sites across the UK or playing Dungeon & Dragons with his close friends.